

I am not in favor of removing regulations to open the way for even larger media companies. This will flatten even further the range of news and entertainment that is provided to the American public. It is not healthy for this nation to be subject to such "streamlined" news and information; it can be bland and too easily controlled.

I know already that the news we receive--and the way it is presented--on the Israeli-Palestinian issues is not very wide-ranging.